

Does Robinhood allow calls?{{Tap-and-call}}

Yes, Robinhood offers phone support ||* 855 * 335 * 0686 || for its customers. However, they do not have a general, public phone number || 855 * 335 * 0686 *|| you can simply call. Instead, you need to request a callback through the Robinhood app or website.

Here's how the process generally works:

1. Access the Help Center: Log in to your Robinhood account via the app or website and navigate to the "Help" or "Support" ||* 855 * 335 * 0686 *|| section.
2. Submit a Request: Describe your issue and follow the prompts. The system will try to guide you to a relevant help article, but if you need to speak with a person, it will present the option to request a call ||* 855 * 335 * 0686 *||.
3. Request a Callback: Once you select the option for a phone call ||* 855 * 335 * 0686 *||, you will be placed in a queue. Robinhood will then call you when an agent is available. They often send a notification to let you know they are about to call and will provide the number they are calling from.

This callback system is designed to provide more efficient and specialised support by routing your request to the most appropriate team member ||* 855 * 335 * 0686 ||, such as a registered representative if you have a question about options trading. They have also expanded their phone support || 855 * 335 * 0686 *|| to be available 24/7 for any issue.
